

Allies to Defend Constantinople Against Greeks

Athens Warned That British, French and Italian Military Forces Will Guard Neutral Zone, if Attacked

Only 2 Battlegrounds Left

Constantine's Threat Called Effort to Take Attention From Economic Problems

PARIS, July 29.—Constantinople will be defended against the threatened Greek attack by the military forces of France and Italy and by the British marines from the warships, according to a decision announced here today by representatives of the governments of those three nations. King Constantine's government at Athens has been so notified.
With the reinforcement of two divisions, as was threatened in the Greek Premier's note to London, Paris and Rome insisting upon liberty of movement in the war against the Turks, the Greek army in Thrace bearing on Constantinople is estimated to number 20,000 men. King Constantine is in command, and he is facing a mixed Allied force of about eight thousand assigned to protect the neutral area around Constantinople. Besides the British marines and a small force of French sailors, the Allied troops include two small French regiments with a detachment of artillery, one Italian battalion of infantry and some British land forces.

French to Prepare Defense

General Harrington, in command of the inter-Allied headquarters at Constantinople, has assigned a French general to prepare a line of defense occupied solely by French troops, as they are more numerous than any of the others.

The Greek military moves in Thrace are regarded here as a temporary diversion from the financial and economic problems which have been entering the Allies' attention recently. The enigma of the situation rests with Constantinople, whose capacity is ample to add one more rash move to his many preceding ones, and who possibly is not willing to weigh the consequences of ordering his troops to attack the Allied forces.

If the Greeks insist upon attempting to wind up their war with the Turks without waiting for mediation of the Allies their military situation affords only two battlegrounds. One front is in Asia Minor, where they already have tried and failed to conquer the Turks, and the other is on the European side of Constantinople. Military experts here declare every indication points to an attempt to occupy the city. The Greek outposts have been moved in the direction of Constantinople within the last few days, and the movement of reinforcements across the Aegean into Thrace would be a costly bluff if attempted to cover an attack planned on the former terrain.

Naval Blockade Threatened

On the other hand, to give battle in Thrace against the inter-Allied forces would expose the Greeks to a blockade by the Allies' naval forces which could easily prove embarrassing in a short time. Rumors of Greek movements in Asia Minor are also current, but here again Greece runs into the Allied memorandum agreed upon in Paris on March 26 at the instance of Lord Curzon, whose attitude previously was sympathetic to Greece. The memorandum demanded the complete evacuation of Asia Minor by the Greeks within four months. The Greek offensive therefore signifies their disregard of the Allied decision.

Can of Pedigreed Worms Lost Till Police Call for Recount

WASHINGTON, July 29.—Somebody threw a specific scare into experts at the hygienic laboratory of the Public Health Service the other day by suddenly announcing that many of the government's best known specimens of worms, sealed in jars of alcohol, had been stolen.
The police were called. These worms were so valuable, it was said, that "folk who make a study of such things came here from all parts of the world just to look at them. Disguised as doctors, the policemen stood around the case where the worms used to stay by the hour, just watching. Meanwhile the government scientists were becoming desperate. Not a word about

Film on Kitchener, Barred in England, Is Mystery Here

Local Customs Men Say They Never Heard of It, but Washington Officials Have Protest in Hand

If the motion picture which purports to tell how Kitchener was betrayed is being made the subject of an investigation at the Customs House here, there was nobody around the Customs House yesterday afternoon who knew of it. Further, there was nobody around the Customs House who had ever heard of it.
The statement has been made by the J. Parker Read Jr. Productions that the film is being held up at Customs, although the claim is made by its owners that there is nothing legally to prevent its entry. It is also suggested that the British Government is anxious to prevent its presentation here on the ground that it shows the great British war hero in an unfavorable light.
All this seemed reasonable to customs officers who discussed the matter yesterday, but they professed a profound ignorance of the present location of the film, or what reasons might be advanced to prevent its entry.
Of course if and when the film finally is put into local theaters, it can do no harm to interest the public in it in advance.

WASHINGTON, July 29.—The Treasury Department, officials said today, still has under advisement an appeal made to the department early in the year by the British Embassy against admission to this country of the film "How Kitchener Was Destroyed."
It was explained at the embassy that after the film had been barred in England representatives of the British government sought to have it kept out of the United States. The appeal also was presented by the embassy to Will H. Hays, head of the producers and distributors.

Asks 2 Cities $75,000 Each Over Death Tree

A tree which stood at Mundy Lane and Pittman Avenue, which is the boundary line between New York City and Mount Vernon, will cost each city $75,000 if Vito Coccavale's claim for damages is sustained.
The tree is in New York City. Its branches are in Mount Vernon. It was blown down by the storm of Sunday, June 11, and Vito's wife, Concetta Mietta Coccavale, and her six months' old baby were crushed to death.
Vito contends that their death was due to the negligence of either or both of the two cities in permitting a decayed tree to stand.

Baron Shaw Urges British Industrial Plan for U. S.

Arbitration, Economic Education for Labor, Living Wages Will End Strife Here, He Says

CHICAGO, July 29.—Arbitration, a better economic education for labor and realization by employers that they must pay better than a poverty wage—these are the chief requisites for industrial peace, the Right Hon. Baron Shaw, of Dunfermline, told the Associated Press here today.
Baron Shaw refused to comment on labor troubles in this country, saying that would be presumptuous, but gave the above as the antidotes proving successful in the British Isles.
Baron Shaw said that the greatest message he could bring to America was that real peace in Ireland will come soon. He added:
"The factions over there have been little boys; they are growing up rapidly and soon will reach full manhood. When they reach manhood, then there will be real peace."

Jova, Wounded and Left For Dead, Escapes Captors

Son of U. S. Agent, Who Was Kidnaped by Cuban Bandits, Stabbed Five Times

SAGUA LA GRANDE, July 29.—Eugene Jova, twenty-year-old son of the American consular agent, captured by bandits and held for $20,000 ransom, escaped yesterday, but was severely wounded when he made his break for liberty. There were five dagger wounds in the young man's body when he was found today in a ranch house in which he had sought shelter, but he was able to give the authorities information which was expected to lead to the capture of the bandits.

At a hospital to which Jova was hurried for treatment, he told the police of his capture Thursday by four bandits, one of whom had stopped him earlier on the road and asked for a ride in his car. Securely bound, he was marched into the hills and kept under close guard while his captors sent a messenger to Sagua to demand the ransom. Fearing rural guards, the bandits started to march further into the hill country yesterday.
Jova said he managed to loosen his bonds, and seizing a stone felled the bandit ahead of him. The others then attacked him with daggers, stabbing him five times, once in the lung. They left him for dead, but he staggered and crawled to the ranch house.

Poincare Departs in Auto While Troops Guard Rail Station

Quick Change Made in Plans Because of Rumor That German Monarchists Sought Life of Premier

PARIS, July 29 (By The Associated Press).—All Paris was surprised this morning when it became known that Premier Poincare had slipped quietly out of the city by automobile for his country home in the Department of the Meuse early today.
It had been announced last night that the Premier had departed by train for his week-end holiday. Elaborate precautions were taken at the railway station, whence he was supposed to have departed, and it was said an engine had preceded the train to prevent a possible attempt to wreck it.
It was learned today, however, that a quick change had been made in the plans in order to avert any attempt on the Premier's life which might be made in connection with the announcement yesterday that a German monarchist plot to assassinate him was in existence.
It is understood the Premier is planning to carry out his original intention of participating in the unveiling of the war memorial in the Argonne tomorrow near his country home at Sampigny, and that before leaving Paris the Premier had discussed the alleged plot and the precautions considered advisable.

The reported plot is understood to be the work of the monarchist association known as the Conseil. Encouraged by its success in planning the removal of formal German Minister of Finance Erzberger and former Foreign Minister Rathenau, the association, according to the report made to the French Foreign Office, decided to extend its scope beyond the German frontier and selected Premier Poincare as the first victim.
At the time of the assassination of Dr. Rathenau a report was current in Berlin that the next victims would be Dr. Joseph Wirth, the German Chancellor, and the French Premier, but no attention was paid to the report here at that time.

10-Year-Old Mother And Baby Will Live

LIMA, Ohio, July 29.—Elizabeth Irwin, youngest mother on record in this part of the country, will live to care for her seven-pound son, physicians who have been attending her said tonight.
Elizabeth, who will not be eleven years old until August 4, steadfastly defies efforts of relatives and officials to ascertain the identity of her baby's father. Weak and wasted from her ordeal, she lies at her home in Hardin, Shelby County, caressing the infant, which is normal, physicians say.
The child mother is the daughter of Mrs. L. W. Irwin, wife of the Rev. L. W. Irwin, pastor of a church at Hardin. They moved from Harrod, Allen County, last October. The stepfather has demanded that officials determine the baby's father, if possible, but the condition of the mother has delayed investigation. The case will reach the grand juries of both counties, R. R. Trubey, Assistant County Attorney of Allen County, said tonight.

Bear in Brooklyn Zoo Pines for Native Bergs

Jed, a polar bear in the Prospect Park Zoo, Brooklyn, is sick and may die. Park Commissioner Harman says the heat has affected him. For ten days Jed has not eaten. Keepers have tried to feed him, but he does not care for food.
Jed is eight years old. He was born in Norway and was educated on ice floes. When he was two years old hunters caught him and presented him to the park. He has been there ever since, suffering always from the heat. It isn't food that he wants so much as an occasional iceberg.

De Pace Wins Marble Title

Buster Ross, eight-year-old marble champion of Queens, was defeated yesterday by Johnny De Pace, Manhattan champion, who is fifteen.
The crowd of 5,000, who saw the match at the Boardwalk, Rockaway Park, Queens, cheered the diminutive Queens champion long and heartily, but were unable to inspire him to victory. Johnny won three of the four games and received the silver cup and gold medal put up as prizes by the Park Inn Baths Swimming Association.
